Why I built Journeai.com

- Does ChatGpt work and is it responsible to use?

The Budget Traveler

This persona is a budget-conscious traveler who wants to make the most of their money.

They want a travel itinerary that includes affordable activities and accommodations but still allows them to experience the local culture. They are willing to sacrifice some comfort in order to save money.

Why? Travel planning is now too packaged and booking focused

Road trip? Day trip? Camping? Just dreaming? Yoga retreat? On a budget? Spontaneous travel? Honey moon? Island hopping? Large travel group with different interests? Bringing small kids? Paris or Madrid?

- Are all great ways to travel that don't fit an Expedia form...
- Not useful for open travel planning situations (blue sky, brainstorming and travel ideas) or
 - Quick planning on the go
 - Special interest travel
 - Complex travel
 - Budget travel
- No great solution for spontaneous travelers or changes on the go

What people do instead: My Christmas 2021 “manual”

Camping trip planning

- I used to spend days researching and putting a map and itinerary together for a camping trip. So do my friends...
- Most people get travel advice from blogs, their friends, social networks like tripadvisor and google rather than a professional
- The process is slow and frustrating
- Generated Information is hard to use on the go but there are not many alternatives

- After Expedia and hotel.com added ChatGpt last month the debate has gone more quiet... Full chat not just single prompt

Does it work and is it responsible to use?

- What if information is incorrect/outdated?
- Hallucinations
- No information after 2020, no internet access
- LLMs are essentially a lossy compression of the internet
- Potential and lack of alternatives
- Precision may matter less for initial planning than speed and ideas
- Easy ways to verify

Integrations: Public, private and visual data

- Mostly free, open source solutions
- Map obvious to see locations in itinerary are real and close to each other
- Weather (OpenWeather)
- Street view images of sights (Mapillary)
- Private data / social media would be useful for itinerary and booking personalization
 - Privacy concerns

Who is using it and how?

- Some 40,000 trips generated
- Site has lots of listings in ai tool directories and with techie instagramers
 - Seems to attract mostly tech savvy users looking for ai
- 70% mobile device use
- Social media / sharing is less popular than I expected

Current usage

- Popular searches
 - Most popular are day trips
 - Surprise: Honeymoon
- Mostly short prompts: one sentence
- Very few people realize they can iterate over different travel options
- Very few extreme or provocative prompts
- Captures useful travel preference data for market research
- Skyscanner partner ads and independent ad network
 - Could be integrated better

Are we there yet?

- Current trip ai tool landscape
- Short & mid term plans

Travel is a trillion-dollar industry stuck in the past.

The last major breakthrough came in the 1990s, with the emergence of online travel agencies (OTAs) like Booking.com and Expedia to aggregate inventory.

Unless you hire a travel agent, planning is still a manual and time-intensive process—until now.
